Peer-to-Peer Tips Shared in Post-Webinar Discussion Group Session

- Investing in youth translates to investments in the longevity of a community. In Eatonville, STEM (science, technology, engineering, arts, and math) curriculum and vocational programs help educate and prepare youth so they are well-positioned to get good jobs and give back to their community.
- Youth have a unique ability and vision about how to improve their communities. So many social change movements have been led by youth. It is important to engage them in health improvement efforts.
